Renewable Energy Action Team to Announce Path Forward for Desert Renewable Energy Conservation Plan

What: Stakeholder WebEx to discuss next steps on the Desert Renewable Energy Conservation Plan (DRECP)

When: Tuesday, March 10, 2015 at 11 a.m. PDT

Why: This call will be used to brief stakeholders on next steps for the DRECP that are based on an initial review of public comments received between the date the draft plan was released on Sept. 23, 2014 and the public comment period ended on February 23, 2015. The briefing will not include a Q&A.

The DRECP is one of the most significant landscape-level conservation and renewable energy planning efforts in U.S. history, covering 22.5 million acres in seven counties and accommodating up to 20,000 megawatts of renewable energy. It is a key part of state and national efforts to increase the use of renewable energy and conservation measures, and address climate change. More than 12,000 comments from a diverse range of stakeholders have been received since the draft DRECP was released in September 2014.
